

GANES VALUE GROWTH FUND

The Australian share market recorded its worst March quarter in history with a fall of 15.7% and the second worst quarter ever, behind the December 1987 quarter.

With that as the backdrop it is understandable that some investors have fled the market worried about the future, or thinking they can predict it, with the intention of returning when the current crisis has abated.

We can't predict the future any better than anyone else, but history does offer some guidance when we examine the long term results of outstanding investors we admire. Most investors are aware of Warren Buffett and his impressive investment results but little is known, or spoken of, the spectacular fortune built by Shelby Davis made entirely from investing in the share market.

Shelby Davis was born in 1909, and starting in 1947 with $50,000 of seed capital provided by his wife's family he managed to grow that stake to $900m at the time of his death in 1994, making him one of America's richest men in the process.

Davis' strategy was to invest predominantly in insurance companies and financial services businesses - a strategy he maintained for 47 years. Just as importantly however, he held on to his shares rather than moving in and out of the market trying to time its ups and downs. Not only did time in the market see him perform well, but he minimised his tax by not generating taxable capital gains on a regular basis. Having an entire portfolio at work rather than losing a part of it every year to the taxman is an important consideration when building wealth.

Davis was 65 as he headed into the 1974 crash and saw his personal wealth reduced by 60% during this period. Approaching his retirement years other investors may have been tempted to sell and move to cash, ready to return when the "outlook is more certain". But he held on to his shares confident in the underlying businesses he owned. Subsequently between the age of 66 and 85 he multiplied his fortune a further 45 times, adding more to his family's fortune in the final five years of his life than in the previous 80 years.

Not only is the story of Shelby Davis a feel good story in this difficult market, we think it reinforces our view that by investing in good quality businesses over the long haul, investors will ultimately be rewarded for their patience and courage to see out the short-term market fluctuations, volatile and worrying as they may be.

GANES VALUE GROWTH FUND

The Ganes Value Growth Fund provides investors with exposure to a unique portfolio of Australian listed companies that will provide growth and income to investors over the longer-term. It is their meticulous approach to studying companies while taking into account the macro-level drivers of Australian business that make Ganes such a capable investment firm.

Ganes investment methodology comprises both quantitative and qualitative analysis commonly called fundamental analysis. This research process ensures that financial ratios and measures are used to demonstrate that the company produces superior returns, while also making experienced judgements about the underlying strength of the business and the talent of its management team.

The team at Ganes often refer to the following quote as an insight into their investment strategy:

"If you are a prudent investor or sensible businessman, will you let Mr. Market's daily communication determine your view of a $1000 interest in the enterprise? Only in case you agree with him or want to trade with him. You may be happy to sell out to him when he quotes you a ridiculously high price, and equally happy to buy from him when his price is low. But the rest of the time you will be wiser to form your own ideas of the value of your holdings, based on full reports from the company about its operations and financial position." - (extract from The Intelligent Investor by legendary investor Ben Graham)

The Ganes Investment Philosophy distills down to paying a reasonable price for a growing quality business, and therefore is a process based on individual stock selection to generate superior returns. A 'typical' investment in the portfolio is a profitable, growing business with an easily understood business model that can be purchased at a price that will deliver, in the opinion of Ganes, a superior return over the medium to long term.

With an attractive investment opportunity identified, Ganes will allocate 1 to 2 percent of the fund's assets to an initial purchase, then over time build a larger stake in the business as comfort levels increase with the business and its management. Holdings will be added to, reduced, or sold entirely as changes in the underlying economics of the business, market pricing, or Ganes' assessed value of the company occurs.
